SURVIVORS OF CABINETS.

Nephe Left From the Lincoln Administration—One From Johnson's.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—If President Roosevelt, instead of tendering to each member of the McKinley cabinet a reappointment, had tried to go to a further extreme of conservatism and make up a cabinet of the oldest experienced material he could find, who would he have put into it? This was the thought of many who looked at the throng of gray heads at the funeral exercises of President McKinley today.

Such a cabinet of "last survivors" would have as its secretary of state John W. Foster, of Indiana, who occupied that office no longer than the latter months of Harrison's administration, and is now but sixty-five years old. Its secretary of the treasury would be George S. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, who is in his eighty-fourth year. Its secretary of war would be John M. Schofield, who held that office under Andrew Johnson. Its secretary of the interior would be Carl Schurz, who served under Hayes. Its secretary of the navy, also dating from the same administration, would be Nathan Goff, Jr., of West Virginia. Its postmaster general would be James N. Tyner, of Indiana, who held office for the last few months of the Grant administration. Its attorney general would be George S. Williams, of Oregon, also of the Grant administration, and its secretary of agriculture, Norman J. Colman, of Missouri, who was the first occupant of that office in the latter months of the Cleveland administration. We have, therefore, among ranking survivors one man who goes back to Johnson, three who date from Grant, two from Hayes, one from the first Cleveland administration, and one from Harrison.

We have no survivors of the Lincoln administration now living, although of the soundly recognized Confederate cabinet one member, John H. Reagan, of Texas, who was born in the same year as ex-Gov. Boutwell, is still living. Reagan is now a railroad commissioner of the State of Texas, and has been in public life most of his days. In fact his biography relates rather pathetically that he was retired from office for nine years after the civil war, because of his famous "Fort Warren letter," written from the beleaguered stronghold of Texas, advising them to accept the amendments to the constitution. With the exception of nine years' punishment for this bit of advice, he has been honored almost continuously with official positions, serving Texas as an independent republic and as a state in the American union, then serving the Confederate government, and finally the state and the nation when Texas was restored to the union.

John M. Schofield, who is now the oldest of the living members of the cabinet, owed his position to the fact that he was a young man of good military record, of democratic affections, and yet conservative enough to secure confirmation in the troublous days of the Johnson administration, after Stanton's retirement. He served only a few months under Johnson, but remained until March 12th under President Grant, when he was made a major general. Schofield, just before his retirement, was the last of his line who had commanded an independent army during the civil war. He fought the battle of Franklin, Tenn., with Hood, who was then moving in the rear of Sherman's army, in an attempt to reach the Ohio river. Thomas was at Nashville, and Schofield was bringing up troops to his aid when he was furiously attacked at Franklin by the Confederates whom he repulsed.

President Grant appointed Boutwell secretary of the treasury, after he had failed to secure the confirmation of Alexander T. Stewart, of New York, for that office, because he was a merchant and an importer, and thus debared by law from administering the affairs of the treasury department. President Grant sent to the senate a recommendation that the law be repealed. Mr. Stewart offered to turn his business over to trustees, and to devote its profits for his term of office to charitable purposes; but congress refused to yield. Gov. Boutwell had been appointed commissioner of internal revenue under Lincoln and elected to congress from Massachusetts in 1862. In point of years he is the ranking ex-cabinet officer. The long list of secretaries of the treasury since his day who have gone over to the great majority is very impressive. Lamon to Charles S. Fairchild no one is now living, and the roster includes Lot M. Merrill, John Sherman, William Windom, Charles J. Folger, Walter Q. Gresham, Hugh McCulloch, and Daniel Manning.

An associate of Boutwell in the Grant administration was George H. Williams, of Oregon, attorney general. He was the first Pacific Coast man ever appointed to the cabinet, and Joseph McKenna, who served under McKinley, also as attorney general, was a second.

A third Grant administration survivor is James M. Tyner, of Indiana, who filled out the last few months of Grant's term as postmaster general. He had been for many years a member of congress from Indiana. Before that he had been connected with the postal service in various capacities, and was remarkably well equipped for the position. But his political activities are destined to be more remembered than his departmental. At the Cincinnati convention of 1876 Morton was the Indiana candidate for the presidency; the man whom the friends of Grant particularly wanted to defeat was Mr. Blaine, and when Morton's followers saw that he could not get the nomination they began to figure on what they should do. Mr. Tyner was the man who proposed that the delegation go to Hayes as the only man who could get the nomination away from Blaine. His advice was accepted although the nomination of Hayes resulted.

It is from the Hayes administration that the ranking secretary of the interior comes. Carl Schurz served in that office throughout the four years. He had been a leader in the Greeley movement in 1872, and it was generally expected that, with most of the rest of its leaders, he would support Tilden in 1876. But he took the ground that Hayes had shown that he was a practical republican governor of Ohio, not only in civil service, but in a great many things; and Mr. Schurz preferred a man who had been tested to one who had merely promised. Hayes did make in his administration an earnest attempt to reform the civil service, and supported Mr. Schurz's own efforts in the interior department, where the traditions of that period have made a lasting impression. A veteran land-office clerk remarked to your correspondent the other day that he came to Washington long before the days of the civil service reform law, first writing to Secretary Schurz, setting forth his qualifications for the position that he sought; but adding that he was a southerner and a democrat, that he had voted for Tilden, and that his only claim was his preparation for the work. Schurz investigated the case, and the man has been in the land office ever since. This is a somewhat typical instance.

The ranking secretary of the navy belongs to that administration, too, in the person of Nathan Goff, Jr., of West Virginia, who served but a few months in its closing year. He is now on the Federal bench of the State, and the republican leader there until the rise of Stephen B. Elkins. Goff's predecessor as secretary of the navy in the Hayes cabinet was Richard W. Thompson, of Indiana, who died very recently. He was called in his day the "ancient mariner of the Wash," and he owed his appointment not so much to familiarity with the naval affairs as to the desire of the Morton element in Indiana to prevent the selection for a cabinet place of Benjamin Harrison, who would otherwise have been President Hayes's choice. Norman J. Colman, of Missouri, was the first occupant of the office of secretary of agriculture. He is still living, as he naturally should be, since that office was established only twelve years ago. It is rather remarkable that John W. Foster should be the oldest living ex-secretary of state in point of service. In fact, he, with Richard Olney and William R. Day, are the only living ex-secretaries. The list before Foster contains the names of Blaine, Bayard, Frelinghuysen, Evarts, and Fish. Mr. Foster's career is too recent to be too well known to need review. He is almost the only man in America who has made diplomacy a career and achieved success in it.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctor said she would die from pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Mr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her. This marvelous medicine guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at the Woods Drug Co.

Reputed His Own Char.

The most remarkable testimony yet given before the Schley court of inquiry is that of Lieutenant Commander L. P. Heiner, who was navigating officer of the Texas in the battle of Santiago. Describing to the court the alleged danger in which the Texas was placed by the Brooklyn's celebrated "loop," Heiner affirmed that the distance between the two ships was only 150 yards, yet when he was given the official chart drawn up by Heiner, himself and signed by him and other naval officers including Secretary Long, it was shown that the nearest the Brooklyn came to the Texas was half a mile. Heiner promptly extricated himself by declaring the chart inaccurate by its refutation of the official document was approved by Judge Advocate Lemly. This is very strange for the chart in question purports to have been prepared by seven naval officers, the navigating officers of the participating vessels, endorsed by the secretary of the navy as correct and submitted to the senate committee in substantiation of the charges against Schley. The secretary's report transmitting the chart closed by saying:—"In reconciling differences of opinion in regard to distances, bearings, ranges, etc., the authority given to the representative of the ship under discussion to bring in any argument or data he considered necessary, and the board submits this report with a feeling that under the circumstances it is as clearly correct as is possible so long after the engagement." This "so long after the engagement" was three months from October—yet after more than three years Commander Heiner repudiates his recollection of three months! Verily this incident is a sweet morsel for those who have been charging a conspiracy against Schley. It is confirmative of that charge and it also discredits Heiner's testimony.—The State.

Birds by Night.

There were birds and birds here Thursday night. They were of all sizes and colors, of dull and gay plumage. They came by thousands and all night long, flocked around the electric lights and into the open stores and houses everywhere. Many of them dashed against the wires, posts and other obstructions with such force that they were killed and the streets were literally littered with dead birds the next morning. The same circumstance is reported from Wadesboro and it also occurred here about this time last year.—Monroe Journal.

A Shocking Calamity.

"Lately before a railroad railroad," writes Dr. A. K. Kellert, of Williams, Ark. "My foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. It's simply wonderful for burns, boils, and all skin eruptions. It's the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Woods Drug Co."

HIS WIFE'S RIGHTS.

One Man Who Looks After His Wife's Enjoyment and Is Indignant at Those Who Are Less Thoughtful.

A company of men at a corner grocery down in "Missouri" were speaking of the rights of wives, when one of them said:

"It's a shame the way some men treat their wives. I know husbands who think their wives are entitled to no consideration whatever, and treat them very little better than servants. They keep them at work all the time, never spend any money on them, if they can possibly help it, and never allow them to go away from home on a visit or pleasure trip. Such men are brutal, and it's a pity they have wives."

"That talk's mighty plently sensible talk, now, mister," agreed an old fellow from "Possum Ridge," who had been an interested listener. "I know lots of gals just men as you speak of, them gals is them 're blame mean. That's ole Jake Hymer, up that on 'Possum Ridge. Treats his wife scandalous, keeps her workin' right 'long day after day, an' year in, an' year out, an' never lets her go no what. Blame my hide, men, but I got powerful sorry for ole Jake's woman sometimes."

"You wouldn't dream of treating your wife in any such way," some one remarked.

"I reckon I wouldn't."

"You realize that she has feelings and longings, and a love of recreation and pleasure, and you treat her accordingly."

"Of course I do. Blame it all, a wife is a human bein' like the rest of us, an' she's got a right to enjoy life. That's my notion of it, anyhow."

"And it's the right idea, too."

"That's the way I figger it. Take ole Jake Hymer's wife, now. What sort of pleasure kin she find in livin' when she's got to dig an' scrape an' tug an' sweat every day of her life, an' never go nowhere near no notion? That can't be no enjoyment in no such way, o'livein'."

"No, indeed."

"Now take my ole woman; she works, o' course, but she has her pleasures right along, an' she feels that that's her 'sowin' to live for. When she's workin' she kin look forward to the enjoyments that kin store for her, an' that kind of braces her up an' keeps her in spirits."

"It makes her feel that she has something for which to live."

"You bet. Makes her feel like life wa'n't all a howlin' wilderness o' work an' hardships. It does me good to see my woman enjoy life, an' I take keer that she does it."

"What's the loss o' a little time, anyway?"

"It isn't anything."

"That's just what I think, an' so I says to my wife, 'Time is fer work, and when the time fer play comes, I say make use of it.'"

"You allow your wife to drop her work and cares and worries and go visitin'?"

"I do. I just give her a chance to have a good time. Ever' year when she gits the corn crop laid, by, and the harvestin' done up, then she's a sort o' idle time, an' I tell her to take a half day off some Saturday an' go visitin'."

"I tell her to take a half day off some Saturday an' go visitin'."

WHO'S WHO.

Men of Fame in America—The States of Their Birth and of Their Residence.

"According to 'Who's Who in America,'" said the man who was one of them, "there are 11,551 persons, men and women, in the United States and Canada who have been sufficiently notable to be enrolled in that directory of distinction. Only living persons are admitted and they go entirely on merit, at least it doesn't cost a cent. There might be a few more, but there is an 'unrecorded remnant' who are too modest to stand in the fire light that bats upon a printed page, and they refuse to respond to the heartrending appeals of the publishers to 'step this way please.' The eleven regiments and a half who did come up—would anybody think there was so much greatness on earth—represent all the professional walks of life and all the professions of the other callings, and 4,221 of them are graduates of colleges, other than medicine, law, theology and technical institutions, 717 graduated in medicine, 404 theology, 327 technical, 521 law, 406 West Point, 121 Annapolis, 805 common school, 239 high school, and 1,791 gave no educational data. Only 31 were self-taught, and 282 were privately educated, which isn't so bad when we come to consider the usual talent found in tutors' hands."

"The states furnishing these distinguished persons, New York leads with 2,066, while 2,849 of them reside within the boundaries of the state, most of them I suppose being in the city. Massachusetts comes next with 1,130, although but 1,020 of them have stayed at home. Pennsylvania is third with 1,020, only 880 remaining in the state. These figures show that it isn't population that furnishes greatness, but it is in the air, for Massachusetts with only half the population of Pennsylvania has 10 per cent more of greatness. Maine produces 351 geniuses and only 99 of them seem to be able to stand the temperate atmosphere of the state. California at the other side of the country takes the other tack and with a production of only 66 she furnishes homes to 291. Ohio, the talented, produces 866 worthies, 484 of whom live elsewhere. Kentucky, with its reputation as a greatness producer, only 230 with 135 living in the state. Colorado gives homes to 109, produced as many as she produced, her production being only 1. No other state or territory has produced less, except Alaska, Arizona, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wyoming, whose entire output is nil, although they house 4, 18, 25, 22, and 17 respectively. New Jersey produces 248 and finds homes for 314 most of whom, no doubt, are commuters on New York trains. The general figures are presented in the District of Columbia which has produced 90 distinguished individuals and finds homes for 889, not counting senators and representatives, though diplomats are in the list of residents; 132 Georgia 'Crackers' have burst into fame, and 113 find Georgia good enough for them; it includes Hoke Smith, but not Dink Bots. Vermont, with 254, it does well for a cold state, but she can keep only 59 of them in her midst. Nebraska has only produced 4 persons of eminence, but 97 find homes there, including, of course, the editor of The Commonwealth. South Carolina and Wisconsin are nearly as tight and tuck with 149 and 145, but Wisconsin affords better pasturage apparently, as she has 147 residents, while the Palmetto state has but 70."

"We have 287 English of distinction among us, 174 Canadians, 238 Germans, 146 Irish and about 200 of all other nationalities, including 9 born at sea. Of the entire number 370 live abroad permanently and 11,137 live in the United States, and 44 do not report. The only states which have added to their own production are Colorado, District of Columbia, Florida, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island,

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a graver-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life. This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Woods Drug Co."

Friskies Charleston.

Our Charleston friends seem to appreciate the drawing power of the modern Midway and are justly indignant over a report that has gone abroad to the effect that this great attraction has been cut out of the preparation for their great Exposition.

They want it understood that this enterprise is designed to come up to the most advanced exposition standard, that it will be both grave and gay, according to where you strike it.

The Charleston News and Courier expatiates upon the plan for the Midway with an enthusiastic volubility worthy of the most accomplished "speller." Hear it:

"No Midway, indeed! We would have the genuine article with a variety of attraction and a gorgeousness of ensemble that will make all previous Midways comparable to a punched midway. While our Midway will be deliciously warm and entrancingly frisky, we can assure the public that it will offer nothing that will offend the most fastidious taste. Twenty-one acres of the Exposition grounds have been reserved for this part of the show and nearly every foot of this large area has already been taken. There will be camels, elephants and gondolas and wild Indians and buffalo, and congresses of Oriental beauties and dancing girls who have taken medals at all the great expositions, and restaurants and refreshments without end."

This is sufficient. Twenty-one acres of Midway will do and we hereby promise the News and Courier that we will all come to the Charleston Exposition.—Atlanta News.

That's What We Say.

A minister of the gospel, writing to his church paper, says of a lately deceased member: "He was a member of Union church and was funeralized by his pastor in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives."

If there is one thing calculated to make a dead man rest uneasy in his grave it seems to us it would be to be "funeralized." It is an indignity that ought not to be offered to any dead man. No one would offer it to a live one. In the first place, it couldn't be; in the second place, he wouldn't stand it if it could, if he were a man of any taste and spirit. "Funeralized!" It's perfectly horrible.—Newberry Observer.

Female Colleges.

There is a sort of revolution in many minds against the name of "female college"—indeed against the word "female" itself without reference to colleges particularly. It has an unpleasant sound and look, as if a suggestion of distinction among animals, rather than among human beings.

For this reason colleges for educating young ladies—ah, here it is again—"young ladies" is another very distasteful expression to some people, this scribble included; so we will start the sentence over again. For these reason colleges for educating young women—yes, "young women" is far better—are getting away from the name of "female colleges" and adopting the better title of "colleges for women."

Greenview Female college holds on to the old style. So do Williams and Blue West. The Methodist college in Columbia, under the progressive presidency of Dr. John A. B. Scherer, dropped the name of the title during his administration and became "Columbia College." But, as there were numbers of Columbia colleges, that title was somewhat indefinite. The stand and sturdy Dr. Daniel has gone back to the old title. A better title, we submit respectfully, would be the "Methodist College for Women"—like the Presbyterian College for Women in the same city—though it is bordering on the ridiculous to speak of institutions that have among their pupils many signaling girls with short dresses and hair in plaits as "women's" colleges.

Best of all, for all the colleges, would be just to have a name plain and simple, like Newberry, or Wofford or Erskine, and let the world take its chances in sending the young people to them. If by chance a girl should find her way upon campus of Newberry or Wofford she would be well taken care of. And if a boy should stray upon the campus of Due West Female college or Columbia Female college he could soon be shown his mistake and pointed to some college for men where he might pursue his literary studies in peace.

We don't hear anything about "male" colleges. Away with the "female" ones.—Newberry Observer.

The Truth's the Pity.

Dr. J. A. B. Scherer, of Charleston, made a notable address on McKinley's burial day, in which among other things he alluded to the talk about shutting foreigners out, as though anarchy was due to them, and that we cannot shut out what is native. He pointed out that Wilkes Booth and Chas. J. Guiteau were born in this country of American parents, and that Leon Czolgosz was also born here, but of alien parentage. Since the civil war we have elected seven men to be our rulers, and three out of seven have been assassinated by native Americans. Dr. Scherer is almost merciless when he adds: "There is no other country in the world with a record like that. The life of the president of the United States is cheaper than the life of the Czar of Russia or any other European monarch. We do more murders annually than any other country, and we are beginning to lead France in the number of divorces. This is the only country in the world, civilized or uncivilized, where it is a frequent practice to burn people at the stake and afterwards carry away the fragments as souvenirs." This is a fearful indictment, and the pity is the truth of it.—Greenview Mountaineer.

What Wellington Said.

Much has been said about the remarks Senator Wellington, of Maryland, was reported to have made about the shooting of President McKinley. Some of the expressions would hardly have been justified if he had said what was reported. We have had a suspicion from the first that his remarks had probably been given a turn that changed his meaning. Here is what he says about it:

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 17.
Dr. W. A. Croft, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir—I thank you very much for your kind letter of the 16th inst., and in reply would say I have no hope of receiving decent, much less fair, treatment from the administration papers, and for that reason have ceased making endeavors in that direction. I have no interview, but refused again and again to give any expression for publication, for the reason that McKinley had done me such an injury that I could never forgive, and in fact it would be better to say nothing at that time. Notwithstanding these facts, the newspaper reporters have manufactured a story for the occasion, and the administration papers are making all they can out of it.

In the crime of Caligula, I hardly think it necessary to say that I, like yourself, abhor an assassin. I am as much appalled at the crime which struck down President McKinley as any one of his warmest friends. I don't think that anyone who knows me would for a moment believe that I would look with indifference upon an act of this kind, when, as you say, it strikes at the government itself and affects every citizen therein. Our list of murdered presidents has been far too great, and some drastic law should be passed to prevent another national tragedy like that enacted at Buffalo.

In explanation of the statement which appeared wherein I was made to say that I was "indifferent to the whole matter," I wish to state that those words were not in connection with the president's death or the act of the assassin. Refusing to give the reporters an interview, they became persistent, and finally one of them remarked that the people were expecting some statement from me, and to that I replied that I was indifferent to what the people expected, I would give no interview. These are the facts in the case.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE L. WELLINGTON.

Presidential Succession.

We have had but one application for a position on the honor roll that we proposed in last Tuesday's LANTERN, and while she does not give the name that we called for, she deserves special honor for showing that the name cannot be given.

It will be remembered that the request was, substantially, to give the name of the man who would become president if Mr. Roosevelt and seven successors should die or become incapacitated during the present term. The following letter is the only response we have received:

CHESTER, Sept. 28th, 1901.

Mr. Editor:—
In THE LANTERN of last Tuesday you asked the school children to send in the name of the man who would succeed to the presidency of the United States after Mr. Roosevelt, in case he and his seven successors should die.

I find after some investigation that the death of Vice-President Hendricks, in 1885, led congress to pass a law in 1886 fixing the presidential succession as follows: Secretary of state, postmaster general, secretary of the navy and secretary of the interior.

The secretary of agriculture was not made a member of the cabinet until 1889, so this law does not apply to him. The office of president would become vacant if Mr. Roosevelt and the first seven members of his cabinet should die.

Very respectfully,
MAMIE HUTTON.

Miss Mamie has found out something that has escaped most of people, including many of the leading newspapers and other high authorities. In the same issue of THE LANTERN in which our question was asked a short article was copied from the Charlotte daily Observer, one of the best papers in the country, giving the presidential succession, and the secretary of agriculture was named as the eighth dignitary, and the Observer is only one of the many prominent papers that have overlooked the fact that this official has no more claim upon the succession than the speaker of the house of representatives.

If the law had provided that the members of the cabinet in order should succeed to the presidency, while there might even have been some question whether the occupant of a cabinet position not then in existence would have been in the line of succession, yet in the improbable event of a vacancy just ahead of him, the construction would probably have been strained sufficiently to cover his case. But that is not the provision. The members of the cabinet are named, by office, that shall succeed down to and including secretary of interior. The secretary of agriculture would not doubt have been included if such an office had existed then.

We had not only this, however, but also another thing in mind when we asked the question, and the other is the one that prompted us to ask for "the name of the man" that would succeed to the presidency in the event described. If the obstacle mentioned above were removed, the present secretary of agriculture would still encounter a constitutional disqualification. Mr. Wilson is not a native of the United States, being a Scotchman, if we are not very much mistaken.

We have mentioned before certain criminals who committed atrocious crimes for the avowed purpose of immortalizing their memory and whose names it was therefore decreed should never be pronounced. The decrees failed of their purpose for a reason that does not exist in the case of President McKinley's assassin. Such an order issued in regard to him, if not respected, would at least be obeyed. His name will never be pronounced. This will be made more certain if people attempt to follow the numerous directions given for its pronunciation. For example, we are told to pronounce it Tcholligosh, as if any human being could pronounce such a combination. If, however, one should fill his mouth with mush and omit about three letters, he might get some sort of a Polish sound out of it, until the phonetic (C) spelling is analyzed and he is told how to pronounce certain combinations of letters, and then bewildered becomes complete. Since the name is represented in English letters, we suppose their English force should be respected, and so you may just as well say Zolgoz.

From Near Lewis.

LEWIS, S. C., Sept. 28.—Picking cotton is the order of the day with most of the farmers, although not much has been ginned yet, as it opens slowly. A lot of hay has been harvested in the last few weeks and a good many still continue to save and will as long as the weather is favorable. Several new mowers have been bought around in the neighborhood. The last few days have been cool and very unpleasant and we all think of the words of the poet: "The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year."

Miss Mayme Atkinson gave a dance last Tuesday night in honor of Mr. John Jones, who is spending week with home folks at Lewis. Mr. and Mrs. Brevard Fewell, of Ebenezer, were called to the bedside of their little daughter Helen, who was visiting at her grand parent's Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Triplett. We learn she has scarlet fever. At the last report she was improving.

Miss Virgie Triplett's school has been closed, owing to the danger of the disease being spread. Mrs. Ella Hayes, of McConnellsville, spent a week not long since with her cousins, Misses Belle and Fanny Turner.

Mrs. J. R. Alexander and children, of Charlotte, visited her mother, Mrs. Ruth Keenan, last week. She also spent a few days with her sister at Leeds, Mrs. Fred McCallum.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Craft visited relatives at Blackstock a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Stroud spent last Sabbath with Mr. Stroud's sister at Richburg, Mrs. T. W. Roddy.

Miss Lottie Barron, of Rock Hill, spent a while with Misses Virgie and Dollie Triplett not long since.

Mrs. R. T. Cloud and little granddaughter, Geneva, of Chester, visited at Mr. Stroud's last week.

Mr. John Murr, of Chester, spent a few days at Lewis last week visiting relatives.

Misses Lillie Stroud and Belle Atkinson spent Thursday night and Friday with Miss Mayme Atkinson.

Mr. Belle Turner spent last Sunday in Chester with her brother, Mr. John Turner.

Mr. J. G. Triplett is attending a business college at Macon, Ga.

Mrs. J. B. Atkinson is spending a while with her daughter at Leeds.

Mrs. Mary Jones, of York, spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Hill, not long since.

There will be communion at Mill church the first Sunday in October, preaching to commence on Friday before eleven o'clock.

Preaching is to start today at Orr's school house and continue for a few days. Rev. Mr. Stoll is to do the preaching.

COTTON BLOSSOM.

Honor Roll.
We have not names to make up that honor roll. We mentioned last Tuesday. Miss Mayme Atkinson is the only one who thought worth while, it seems, to make the effort.

She did not give the name called for, because that was impossible. Now in witness of our appreciation of her effort, we are going to send her THE LANTERN the remainder of this year free.

Willie Peay Killed.

Willie Peay, who was employed as night watchman in the yards of the Southern railway at Asheville, was crushed between cars last Friday morning and died yesterday morning. It seems that he was coupling cars and the train moved back when it was expected to go forward. Willie was 18 years old and had been a member of the A. R. P. church for several years.

Mr. John T. Peay, his brother, and his mother were with him when he died. The remains were brought home last night. Funeral service will be held in the A. R. P. church this afternoon at 2 o'clock, by the pastor, and the remains will be buried in Evergreen cemetery.

Buy Roller King if you want good rolls.

The Rev. Dr. Wm. C. Gray, the venerable editor of the Interior, is dead.

Miss Wrennie Peay came home from Due West to attend the funeral of her brother.

Tommie Cousar and Hugh Macaulay left yesterday for Wulford college. Mr. D. J. Macaulay went over with Hugh.

Mr. Waddy C. Thompson has resigned the office of mayor of Lancaster. Mr. T. K. Cunningham is mayor pro tem.

Mr. C. G. Waller, well known as "Cad" Waller, one of Greenwood's most prominent citizens, died Sunday morning of typhoid fever.

Mr. H. Endel, of Greenville, was shot in and Buffalo when McKinley was shot. He does not desire to be around when any more such occurrences take place.

The funniest bull fight on record is reported from Bayonne. An automobile replaced the horse of the picador, and at sight of the vehicle, seven bulls turned their tails and fled from the arena.

Mrs. Addie Weeks Warner, wife of the editor of the Waterboro Press and Standard, died Friday afternoon, after only one day's sickness. She had been married only three years and was greatly loved in the community.

A Good Bank.

The Winnsboro Bank has sent us a card for our advertising columns, which appears for the first time in this issue. Reference to the card will show that this institution is one of the strongest in the state, and the security its large capital, surplus and additional liability of its stockholder offers to depositors amounts to nearly a third of a million dollars. Its officers are all well known business men. They pay a per cent. on deposits in savings department.

Catholic and Hebrew.

We have just received the following cheerful note, which we are glad to publish:

Dear Sir: After spending a delightful vacation in the mountains of Va., at my old home, I expect to return to Chester next Thursday, Oct. 3rd, together with my family, much improved. Please announce that I will fill my appointments at Catholic and Hebrew churches the first Sabbath in this month.

Yours truly,
C. G. BROWN.

No cutting of price on Roller King; it cut cannot get again.

Rocked a Train.

One evening last week just after the northbound train on the Southern pulled out from Blackstock, a rock crashed through a window and was shivered to pieces on the end of the seat in front of Mr. J. W. Reed. Thrown just an instant later it would have struck him. Though he was tough enough to pull through the war whole and resist reconstruction successfully for 36 years, he is not sure that he could grind up a rock.

Mrs. R. Z. Johnston Dead.

Long distance telephone message from Mr. Ed. B. Hoshornburg, of Atlanta, Sunday night announcing the sudden death in that city of Mrs. R. Z. Johnston, of Lincolnton, N. C. Mrs. Johnston's maiden name was Miss Katie Caldwell. She was a daughter of the late Robert Caldwell, of this county, and a sister of Mrs. W. Wat Brice, of Blackstock, and Mr. J. Neely Caldwell, of Atlanta.

Every bag Roller King guaranteed. It not up to standard, return and get your money.

George Wright Dead.

Mr. George Wright, step-son of Mr. C. J. Moore, died Saturday night at the home of Mr. Wm. Carter. He had been employed at the knitting mill in Union. He was on his way home but was unable to get farther than Mr. Carter's. We learn that he was operated on for something like dropsy. He was perhaps about 25 years old. Funeral service was conducted by the Rev. J. H. Yarborough and the remains were buried yesterday at Woodward church.

To see the latest in iron beds, visit W. R. Nails Furniture Palace.

The "Centennial Church."

The Rev. J. P. Knox, of Columbia preached at the A. R. P. church last Sabbath two excellent sermons. He also presented the claims of the "Centennial" church to be built in Columbia in commemoration of the organization of the Associate Reformed Synod of the South, at the "Old Brick Church" in Fairfield county, in 1803. Mr. Knox has an admirable way of presenting his case. He simply explains the purpose in a forcible but dignified way, then asks the people to do what they believe is their duty, and he the deacons supply small envelopes, which he furnishes, for contributions in cash or subscriptions. The amount raised on this occasion was $501.55, which will probably be increased somewhat.

Sam Wylie Married.

Sam Wylie and Miss Clyde Webb, both of McAdenville, were married in the parlor at the Webb Hotel at McAdenville Wednesday night in the presence of a few friends. Rev. B. L. Hoke officiating. Mr. Wylie is a native of Chester county, S. C., but has recently been a salesman in the company store at McAdenville where he has won a large circle of friends. Miss Webb was the beautiful daughter of Prof. J. L. Webb the well known vocal music teacher in this section. The wedding had been kept quiet and their friends were surprised.

The News extends congratulations and good wishes to this happy and popular young couple.—Gastonia News.

Rev. J. S. Moffatt in Columbia.

Yesterday, in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. J. S. Moffatt of Chester preached at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian mission church. Mr. Moffatt is one of the most prominent ministers of this denomination, and in his sermons yesterday he well sustained his reputation as an able and eloquent preacher. His sermon at the morning service was based on the account of the healing of the man with a withered hand in the synagogue at Capernaum, and he drew from the gospel story a lesson as to the folly and dangers of blind, unreasoning prejudice; another as to the true spirit of Sabbath observance and yet another as to the cooperation of God and man. Mr. Moffatt has a very pleasing delivery and his reasoning is both clear and strong.—The State.

The Baptist Union Meeting.

The union meeting of the churches of the Chester Baptist Association convened with the Liberty church Friday, the 27th of September 11 a. m. The introductory sermon was preached by the Rev. H. D. Allen from the words, "The Lord is thy keeper," which was an interesting and fervent sermon. At the close of this service the union was called to order by the former moderator, W. H. Edwards, with J. Waters, the former secretary acting as clerk. The roll of churches was called and the delegates enrolled, when a permanent organization was effected by the election of W. H. Edwards moderator, and W. J. Waters clerk. A recess of one hour was then taken for dinner.

Reassembled at 1:30 p. m., and after some devotional exercises the question "Why are our churches doing so little for the spread of the Gospel?" was submitted for consideration and was discussed by L. C. Hinton, H. D. Allen, J. M. Smith, A. P. McNeill, H. C. Buchholz, T. J. Lucas and J. C. McFadden. The discussion of this question consumed the time till the hour of adjournment.

The union met again Saturday, the 28th, at 10:30 a. m., and after some time spent in devotional exercises the query, "What is the great work of the churches?" came up for consideration, and was discussed by E. T. Atkinson, W. H. Edwards, L. C. Hinton and H. C. Buchholz, after which the body adjourned for dinner.

Reassembled at 1:30 p. m., and after devotional exercises the query, "How can we best reach the cold and indifferent members of our churches?" came up for consideration and was discussed by H. C. Buchholz, E. T. Atkinson and W. H. Edwards.

"How can we know that we are Christians?" was the next question and was discussed by H. D. Allen, J. H. Yarborough and H. C. Buchholz.

Committee on time and place of next meeting reported the Harmony church as the next. Time, Friday before the 5th Sunday in December. Introductory sermon by Rev. Humphreys. Missionary sermon on Sunday by H. C. Buchholz. The report was adopted.

The committee on program for the next meeting submitted its report, which was adopted.

This completed the work for the day, and after engaging in devotional exercises the body was adjourned.

Sunday, the 29th, at 10:30 a. m., the union assembled with the church and congregation at Liberty in Sunday School mass meeting and addresses were made by H. D. Allen and Lewis Fowler, and the missionary sermon was then preached by J. H. Yarborough. This service closed the work of the union, but by request of Liberty church, Lewis Fowler preached in the afternoon.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the weather the attendance upon the meetings of the union was not as large as it would otherwise have been, but taken altogether, it was a very interesting and profitable meeting. The spirit of the meeting was good and the discussions earnest and thoughtful. The discussions were interspersed with songs and prayer and the interest in the meetings was unabated to the last.

The hospitality of the Liberty people was warm, generous and bountiful. The dinners furnished by the good women would have each fed bountifully twice the number present.

The preparation of the program at this meeting for the next meeting is a new departure, or rather a return to the old paths. This program will be published at an early date and the brethren appointed to speak on the different questions will have ample time to prepare themselves for the service. A man has no right to come to a meeting to discuss a question and then get upon the floor and tell his brethren that he has made no preparation for the service. And when he does that you may usually expect to listen to a long, disjointed speech without point or argument. It is exceedingly uninteresting to stand listen to a man thrashing over old straw for half an hour. These remarks have no special reference, however, to the speeches at Liberty, for in the main they were very good.

CZOLGOSZ YELLED.

Colapsed from fright When He Reached Auburn—Expressed Regret for Crime and Sent Message to His Father.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Czolgosz, President McKinley's murderer, in the custody of Sheriff Caldwell of Erie county, and 21 deputies, arrived in Auburn at 3:15 a. m. The train is only about 50 yards from the depot. Awaiting the arrival of the train there was a crowd of about 200 people. Either for fear of the crowd, which was not very demonstrative, or from sight of the prison, Czolgosz's legs gave out and two deputy sheriffs were compelled to practically carry the man into the prison. Inside the gate his condition became worse, and he was dragged up the stairs and into the main hall. He was placed in a sitting posture on the bench while the handcuffs were being removed, but he fell over and moaned and groaned, evincing the most abject terror. As soon as the handcuffs were unlocked the man was dragged into the principal keeper's office. As in the case of all prisoners the officers immediately proceeded to strip him and put on a new suit of clothes. During this operation Czolgosz cried and yelled, making the prison corridors echo with evidence of his terror. The prison physician, Dr. John Gerin, examined the man and ordered his removal to the cell in the condemned row, which he will occupy until he is taken to the electric chair. The doctor declared that the man was suffering from fright and terror, but said that he was shamming to some extent.

The collapse of the murderer was a surprise to every one. En route from Buffalo he showed no indication of breaking down. He ate heartily of sandwiches and smoked cigars when not eating. He talked some and expressed regret for his crime. He said, "I am very sorry for Mrs. McKinley." He reiterated his former statement that he had had no accomplices and declared that he had never heard of the man under arrest in St. Louis who claimed to have tied the handkerchief over his hand, concealing the pistol with which the president was shot. He says the handkerchief was not tied. He went behind the Temple of Music, arranged the handkerchief so as to hide the weapon and then took his place in the crowd.

To Jailor Mitchell he sent this message to his father:

"Tell him I'm sorry I left such a bad name for him."
Czolgosz was in normal condition this afternoon and seemed to have fully recovered from his collapse.

There are five cells for condemned men in the prison, and Czolgosz was placed in the only vacant cell, so all are now occupied.

The keepers are constantly on guard in the room, which is separate from the main prison, but to guard against an attempt on Czolgosz's part to commit suicide, two more guards have been added and one will constantly sit in front of Czolgosz's cell and will have a key that any attempt at self destruction may be easily frustrated.

The Anti-Tammany Fusion.

The attempt to unite the anti-Tammany forces in New York city now seems more likely to succeed than it has seemed at any previous time.

The opposition to Seth Low as the fusion candidate for mayor has weakened remarkably within the last week. The ticket submitted by the anti-Tammany committee of eight was accepted by the general conference committee last night by a vote of 40 to 12, and it is announced that those who voted against it will push their opposition no further.

The ticket, as a whole, is regarded as very strong, and will, it is probably going to be acceptable to the great mass of anti-Tammanyites as any that could be made up.

It is headed by Seth Low, a republican, but a great majority of its other candidates are democrats, including the comptroller, president of the board of alderman, president of Manhattan borough, judge of the city court, district attorney, sheriff, register and two of the three justices of the supreme court.

All the offices with the largest amount of patronage are conceded to the democrats, and, on the whole, they get decidedly the best of the appointment.

Never before in many years has so general and well organized a movement been arrayed against Tammany.

The leaders of that powerful organization, however, are not only confident, but defiant.

Tammany has so seldom been defeated in New York city that it naturally considers itself almost invincible.

The price to be contended for at the election a few weeks hence is so rich a one that both sides will put forth their utmost efforts. It will be the warmest campaign New York has known in many years and the result seems very doubtful.

—Atlanta Journal.

"I have been suffering from dyspepsia for the past twenty years and have been unable after trying all preparations and physicians to get any relief. After taking one bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure I found relief and am now in better health than I have been for twenty years. I can not praise Kodol Dyspepsia Cure too highly." Thus writes Mrs. C. W. Roberts North Creek, Ark. Pryor-McKee Drug Co.

New York is a sorely plagued city just at present, to judge from the Tribune's statement of the situation. It says there are mosquitoes and fleas, and grasshoppers and caterpillars, and inch worms and slow worms and quick worms, with moths and bugs in countless millions in the city. Then one may refer to New York as a flea-bitten and moth-eaten old town on the testimony of its representatives.—Greenview News.

It Never Rains But It Pours.

Our efficient cotton weaver, Y. C. Langston, had quite a thrilling experience on last Thursday night. In the afternoon he himself took the train, then Queen, one of his horses, took sick, and, about night he pulled his own tooth. About 8 o'clock he heard one of his fine puppies making a noise; he took a lamp, his two oldest boys going with him, to see what was the matter. Upon reaching the dog, Willie, his second son, thirteen years old, stepped upon a very large highland moccasin, which bit him on the left ankle, the boy complaining that something had stung him. Mr. Langston, holding the lamp to see what it was, came near being bitten also, the snake striking at him twice. He killed the snake and started a runner for a doctor. Dr. McElroy soon arrived. To cap the climax, Mrs. L. gave birth to a bouncing boy, and for want of a name will call him Henry the VIII. Before examination the dog had been bitten twice by the same snake. Saturday morning, we are glad to state, all were doing well. All this happening in less than 24 hours.—Oconee News.
